

Let There Be Light

Sixty seconds before, the day was bright, the camaraderie warm, the world not yet perfect but the place to be.

In an instant the day was dark, the travelers silent, the world like a tomb for both the living and the dead.

So quickly does the hand of God move that we are shocked at whom and when it touches. It touched our hearts. Almost every person on the Northwest Missouri campus can remember a smile, a cheery hello, the interest those students had showed in us. We bow our heads; we stare at the sidewalks and the mud and the dust but see nothing; we feel the void of a grief-stricken heart—empty as those chairs in the classrooms.

Why? Why, oh Why?

Our doubts and questions disrupted the night, the night that was as dark as the day had been. Like true students, we searched for answers, for hope, for wisdom. The travelers had come to MSC to prepare themselves for helping others in a similar search. In less than six months, they would have been graduating, holding a diploma, and wearing black robes.

Black—our world seems black now. But as the moon was full and bright the night they died, their lives and purposes and inspiration shine on and on throughout the darkest dark. Like the torch of knowledge and the flame of democracy, burns on, the memory of

COSTUMES OF YESTERYEAR for "The Rivals," an 18th century production by Sheridan, give actors Veriel Nickell, Mrs. Malaprop; Cheryl Reineke, Lydia Languish; Vance Coleman, Captain Absolute, and Mike Overbey, Sir Anthony Absolute, an authentic look.

Special Costumes, Set Created For MSC Enactment of 'Rivals'

Richard Sheridan's comedy of manners, "The Rivals," will be presented on three evenings, beginning at 8 o'clock, Wednesday-Friday in the Little Theatre of the Administration Building.

The oral interpretation class is presenting the play, directed by Dr. Ralph Fulsom, chairman of the speech and drama department. Costumes and setting have been specially created for the drama.

"The Rivals" has been popular for its humor, character portraits, and dialogue. The story concerns the courtship of a young military man, Captain Jack Absolute, of a charming girl, Lydia Languish. Lydia's serious vice is reading — usually romantic novels.

As a result of her reading, Lydia, too, wants an exciting romance. Complications arise when her aunt, Mrs. Malaprop, famous for her misuse of words, tries to force her to marry Jack Absolute.

Other comical situations include a duel between Bob Acres and Ensign Beverly. Mistaken identity causes the humor in that scene. The faltering romance of Faulkland, a jealous young man devoted to a sweet girl, Julia, is another of Sheridan's humorous situations.

Vance Coleman, as the dashing Jack Absolute, heads the cast. Cheryl Reineke is his romantic Lydia, and her aunt, Mrs. Malaprop, is played by Veriel Nickell. Mike Overbey is the father, Sir Anthony Absolute.

Tom Laville has the role of Faulkland; Marjorie Hitchcock is his suffering Julia. Phil Reser has the part of the country bumpkin, Bob Acres, and Scott Hodgins is Sir Lucious O'Trigger.

Various numbers will be performed, including some serious songs, "Cantata Comino," "Sanctus," and "O Give Thanks Unto the Lord" as well as such folk and popular songs as "Five Hundred Miles" and "Shenandoah." Mrs. Mitchell will be the accompanist.

Miss Hunsicker Reports Excitement, Enlightenment As Exchange Youth in Israel

orma Hunsicker, a member of an all MSC alumni family, has been carrying on a family tradition of accomplishing the usual in securing her education.

After Miss Hunsicker received her bachelor of science degree in vocational home economics in 1964, she went to Ant Ansgar Iowa, where she taught home economics for a year. Then she took a leave of absence to become an International Farm Youth Exchange student in Israel.

Her tour abroad which included having an inside-the-Vatican audience with the Pope, attending the Ecumenical Council session there, visiting in Switzerland with an IFYE girl who had been a guest in the Hunsicker home near Eagleville, and riding out a tempest on the Atlantic.

Miss Hunsicker, on campus this week, to share her knowledge of the homes and schools in Israel with Kappa Omicron Phi and Colhecon, was interviewed for the Missourian. She reported that she ran the gamut of almost every possible reaction and emotional experience while she lived with five different farm families there.

The progress being made in Israel is excellent, she said. Farm families, whether they live in a socialistic kibbutz, a co-operative, or a combination of these two systems, have modern equipment, are progressive and friendly, work hard, and have made their country a veritable garden of productivity.

Healthwise, Israeli facilities are quite modern. Homes are exceedingly clean.

Miss Hunsicker lived as a member of each of her five host families. She got her work assignment each day. Sometimes it was picking grapes; sometimes, doing kitchen work or any other of the many tasks that needed attention.

The MSC alumna found the frank, casual way of Israeli life pleasant, was surprised at the knowledge all youth have of their country's history and the Bible, and found inspiration in her visits to places where Jesus walked, suffered, and taught.

Judaism, she learned, is not a religion but a way of life, with some of the youth being agnostic or atheistic. All observe the Hebrew holidays, however, and many keep the Sabbath.

During her stay, Miss Hunsicker came to admire the country's observance of the Sabbath. A family spends this so-called Shabbat, from sunset on Friday until the appearance of the first star on the following evening, together, doing no work and sharing endeavors

English Proficiency Test Plan Explained

Many questions have arisen about the test taken before Christmas vacation by students pointed out as deficient in English.

Although the plan was instituted last spring to enable instructors to report at mid-semester any student they believe needs additional English training, many students are still confused about the true purpose of the program.

In previous years every sophomore had to pass a proficiency examination. This plan has been replaced by the current program of requiring a student to pass both a written and a standardized test if reported by any MSC faculty member.

If the student is already enrolled in a composition course, he does not have to take this special test; however, he must maintain a "C" in that course. If he is not in this type of class and fails the test, he must enroll in English 15 or another English composition course.

Students will be notified of the results before the beginning of the spring semester.

within the family circle.

The visitor found that the Israeli people also know much about the history of the United States and that such stories as "Huckleberry Finn" are quite popular.

"Youth there study the Bible in school as history and know the Old Testament well," she said. "I didn't dare get into their Bible quiz contests."

Family ties are quite close, Miss Hunsicker pointed out, even though in the kibbutz settlement babies live in nurseries. (Continued on Page 4)

Vacation-Time Report About Alumni Other MSC Students---Past, Present

... Douglas Price, former MSC student, took time from his double duties in Washington, D. C., to visit during the Christmas vacation with his family and friends in this area. He is employed in the government patent office and is enrolled in night school at Washington University.

Price's brother, John, is a freshman at MSC.

... Two former MSC students, who have been serving in naval aviation in the Viet Nam area, spent part of their present leaves in Maryville.

Lt. Comdr. Robert E. Colville, a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Colville, had spent nearly nine months on a carrier in the Eastern area. He will report to the San Diego base next week and has been assigned to return to the Viet Nam theater on board the Kitty Hawk in November.

Lt. Bennett Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Crawford, Wichita, Kan., had completed a lengthy tour in the strategic area before his leave.

Crawford, who believes that the United States is making some headway in helping the people in southern Viet Nam, pointed out that the people there are fearful of almost everyone and that getting them to a place where they can be self-reliant will be a long, tedious process.

Lieutenant Crawford, who has been recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross, also expects to return to the theater this year for his third tour of duty in the battle-torn area.

... Robert D. Reasoner, MSC senior, has joined the Maryville police force.

A resident of Maryville, Reasoner came to Northwest State from Mt. Ayr, Iowa, where he completed his high school work. He is majoring in business and has a minor in agriculture. He hopes to complete his college work by January, 1967.

Seniors Star in Hastings Tournament

JOE PEIRCE has shown much improvement in handling the ball in back court play, and as a result, played most of both games at Hastings.

Peirce is a letterman and a transfer from Denver University. While in high school in Cherry Creek, Colo., he played basketball under Kurby Lyle, a former MSC ball star.

DAVE REMUND heads the Bearcat team in rebounds and points with a 9.4 rebounding average and a 13.8 scoring average.

"Remund was very instrumental in the wins at Hastings," reported Coach Dick Buckridge, "and has developed exceedingly well during the last three or four ball games." He is probably the shortest post man in the MIAA league.

Remund is a 6-5, 225-pound senior from Coon Rapids, Iowa.

BOB MAREK, a senior letterman from St. Joseph, is also a leading rebounder and has a 9.3 point scoring average.

In the last half of the Hastings tourney finale, Marek turned the score to the Bearcat side for a crowning victory and led the team in rebounds. Marek transferred from St. Joseph Junior College, where he played basketball for the Griffins.

'Cats Face Mules In Swimming Dual

In an attempt to even its record at 2-2, the Bearcat swim team will meet the CMSC Mules tomorrow in Warrensburg.

The Mules, last year's Interstate Meet champion and the Bearcats' strongest opponent in the new MIAA swimming conference, shape up as the team to beat this season. Undeclared in 15 meets last year, the Mules stretched their winning streak to 17 before falling to Missouri University Tigers in December.

The loss can be attributed to the absence of several of the top men who led the Mules to the Interstate championship. They are still strong in four events, however.

In the breast stroke, the Mules have Nobel and Casey swimming times ahead of records set by the Bearcats. The same is true of Harr in the butterfly, Weaver and Brown in the individual med-

Bearcats to Battle Indians In MIAA Game at Cape

The Northwest Missouri State Bearcats will resume MIAA conference play tomorrow night at Cape Girardeau.

Maryville will be taking a 1-0 league record into the contest, having defeated Kirksville Dec. 10. During the Christmas vacation the 'Cats evened their season's record at 5-5 as they won the championship title in the Hastings, Neb., holiday tournament.

Coach Charles Parsley's Indians were off their usual form last season, but still wound up with a 15-8 record. Top returning stalwart is 6-5 center Kermit Meystedt, best scorer, with a 14-point average. Back also is 6-6 forward Tom Drexler and starting guard Ron Hextell. The fast-breaking Indians hope to improve on last season's third place MIAA finish.

The Cape Girardeau squad has posted a 5-3 record thus far, with a surprising upset over Warrensburg earlier this season. The Bearcats roared back from an early 13-point deficit and coasted to a 71-61 win over Midland Lutheran College, Fremont, Neb., to qualify for the finals of the Hastings Tournament Dec. 29-31.

Joe Peirce led all scorers with 15 points, and freshman Jim Vollmuth added 13 points. Bob Marek collected 16 rebounds.

The victory assured Maryville of an improved record over last season. In the championship game the Bearcats hit a sizzling 52 per cent from the field and whipped a favored Hastings College team, 70-65. A balanced scoring attack, led by 6-6 Dave Remund with 16 points and Bob Marek with 12, brought the 'Cats their first tournament title since about 1949. Maryville dominated the rebounding with a 47-36 rebounding edge. Backing up Remund and Marek was Ron Howitt with 13 points.

... From the Bench ...

With Bob Cornelius ... Dev Nelson, popular sports announcer from Kansas University, sat in the press box in Lamkin Gym and exclaimed, "I can see why this Maryville team beat Pittsburg; they've really got spirit."

The Bearcats went on to defeat Washburn that evening, 81-62, and kept alive their hopes of the first, .500 season in several years.

Again this year the woes have been many, but so far the rewards in team work have been great.

Bad luck hit early as 6-5 veteran Bill Yeager was declared out for the season with an injured ankle. The hoax next hit highly-rated Al Van Dyke as he suffered a painful knee injury. And to top it off, rugged Bob Marek sustained a knee injury in the St. Benedict's game. Things looked bad but the Bearcats didn't give up!

In almost every game the 'Cats have been the shorter team. Center Dave Remund has an uphill battle all the way because most of the postmen he has had to guard are taller than he. Ron Howitt and Mike Simon, 6-4 and 6-5, respectively, supply most of the rest of the rebounding power.

Oddly enough, in over half of the games played this season, the smaller Bearcats have out-rebounded their taller opponents. The Bearcats don't give up!

Our Maryville cagers have two fine freshman prospects that have played an important role in their success thus far in Roger Nelson Jim Vollmuth. Sportsman Nelson described Vollmuth having "one of the finest side shot I have seen in a year."

Indeed, the Maryville team has a fine future. They give up!

Dev Nelson concludes his commentary that evening by telling the Washburn team "The Maryville Bearcats will be in Topeka on Feb. 17, if you want to see a basketball club, come out and see them in action."

Our basketball team has taken its share of criticism in the past few years. With several upsets already in the MIAA our varsity squad has just good a chance to take the title as any other team. Despite the hardships this year the Bearcats have kept on fighting and they haven't given up.

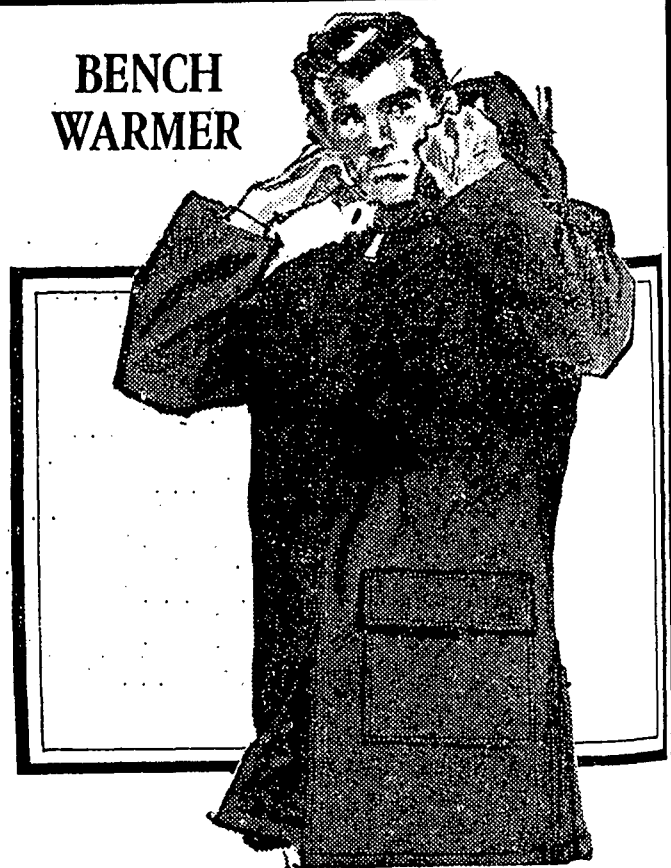

We as their fans owe it to them not to give up until the final game has been played. SUPPORT THE BEARCATS!

Fog Grounding Causes Reunion in Washington

Dr. John Harr, while attending a meeting for all NDEA Institute directors in Washington, D. C., became entrapped in the fog which almost blanketed out the television coverage of the Green Bay Packer-Baltimore football game, and had difficulty rearranging flight plans to get back to Maryville since Friendship Airport was closed.

Hazards endured were compensated for by the pleasure of seeing several old friends including Dr. Harry Gailey, former staff member now at San Jose State College, who will direct an institute in African-Asian history next summer; Dean Moor (and wife), former staff member here and now with CIA in Washington; Paxton Price, former MSC and later state librarian, now directing branch library services with the Federal government; Mrs. Phyllis Stevens Adams, '51, who is directing an institute for Denver University in reading.

Dr. B. W. Geer, '57, assistant professor of biology at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., is co-author of an article on a vitamin-like substance called choline in the December issue of "Growth," internationally circulated scientific journal.

The article describes the effects of removing choline from the diet of the fruit fly, bread mold, and yeast. The substance is essential for normal growth of most living things, including men.

Dr. Geer, formerly of Coin, Iowa, majored in zoology at MSC.

Where the Action Is

Instructors preach, "Work to raise those grades." Parents have high expectations of their college youth. The college student has high hopes and outreaching goals. With these ideal patterns to follow and his own life to lead, the undergraduate must plan his course to meet his needs. The question arises—What are those needs?

They could range from just getting by to wasting time and occasionally cramming for an examination to working hard in activities, as well as in one's chosen field.

The would-be well-rounded college graduate will choose activities to correspond to his interests and academic endeavors. The advantages of taking an active part in college organizations are many. The student benefits by having new experiences and meeting new people with different backgrounds. Equally important is the fact that the activity-minded person is spending his leisure time constructively in the interest of his school, his friends, and most important, himself.

The common excuse, "my grades will suffer," for not being associated with a fraternity, an educational group, a departmental organization, or campus government is a poor one. Only by being involved in college activities, does the student reap the best advantages from his college years.

Although good grades are essential to stay in school and then find a prestige job, participation in college activities is just as important in helping an individual get along in that job. Is there great harm in sacrificing an A for a B if the student is receiving worth-while experiences and broadening his background for a better post-graduate life?

Is it not time that the expectations of parents and the goals of students may be nearly fulfilled when that individual has realized his position in relationship to college activities?

—Marjorie Hitchcock

Will You Look for It When You Find It?

Have you lost a book, a notebook, gym clothes, a pair of gloves, a coat? Or your common sense, your mind, your girl friend, your pledge pin, your sleep?

Colden Hall janitors may have found what you lost. They will be glad to show you the greatest selection of clothes and school supplies in Northwest Missouri, a growing stockpile that threatens to crowd the custodians out of their office, Room 113.

Students may eventually receive some of the money that they deposited for the books, lost then found. But why wait? Librarian James Johnson has advised that all books must be turned in by final examination day. For each day's delay $1 fine will be deducted from the book fee.

Even if you have not lost a coat or a book, you might visit Room 113 and find the coat you have always wanted — if the janitors will sell it to you. They really should open a pawn shop.

The Time of Our Lives

"It was the best of times; it was the worst of times." Using these paradoxical words, Charles Dickens described the germination period of the French Revolution. We use them to describe the year of our Lord, 1965.

"It was the best of times" when Congress offered the helping hand of medicare to the aged, when the second Vatican Council concluded its impressive session, when the Minnesota Twins won the American League pennant (to some people, at least), when the American economy rolled on to new highs and unemployment dipped to new lows, when the shredded country of Viet Nam observed a Christmas truce.

"It was the worst of times" when the Vietnamese war underwent escalation, when civil rights assassinations and riots in Watts blemished the national image, when the British Commonwealth and southern Africa rocked with Rhodesia's proclamation of independence.

Memories are made not only in those wonderful seconds, but also throughout the years. It seems that the good lasts but a split second of happiness; the bad lingers on and on. The joy of receiving a lavalier or pin or of pounding Rolla in the Homecoming game is one that people would like to stretch but cannot. The black memory of the growing Vietnamese war or of a burning apartment the week before Christmas is one that we would like to forget as soon as possible but cannot.

God gave us the sun and the moon, and we named the resulting light and darkness day and night. Using the phenomenon of the sun and the moon and the terms of day and night, we devised a system to reckon time in seconds, minutes, days, hours, weeks, and years.

Like every other approaching year, 1966 is "the year that will be," we promise ourselves, "the most successful, the most peaceful." Like students who can't wait for the semester to end, people are glad to end the year when we didn't live up to our promises, glad to make it "the year that will be."

God, more or less, gave us the year. We have made each year a troubled one, one of discontent, greed, envy, hate, self-pity. But God also gave us His Son, whose birthday we celebrate at the end of every troubled year, every one filled with discontent, greed, envy, hate, self-pity. Consequently we have new hope and new happiness.

We also have new challenge—to live a life like Christ, to make the oncoming year "that wonderful year," to throw out the lists of promises (or resolutions) and bring in the work lists, to imitate the successful coaches, who caution their teams to play one game at a time, by living each moment as it comes and by living each to its fullest.

We must learn the lesson of Scrooge, Dickens' character who almost ran out of time. That is something for which we too, must watch out.

The War of America's Conscience

Vietnamese Pro, Con

"Get out of Viet Nam!" This cry has echoed through the nation and rocked the morale of our soldiers overseas.

In many of the major cities in the United States thousands of strongly - opinionated people have marched, protesting our intervention in a "little country half-way around the world." They ask the question, "Why? Why can't the Vietnamese settle their own disputes?" The fact must be realized that this war is not merely a dispute between two countries — it is a fight for freedom, not only for South Viet Nam, but for all countries as well. If Communist aggression is not terminated to make them happy ones.

It is, at least, a New Year.

nated before it engulfs South Viet Nam, where will it end? Surely not at the shores of the United States!

For days on end, U. S. troops sit in foxholes, hot, dirty, perhaps lonely for loved ones at home, but always alert. They know why they're fighting. They know that the United States cannot withdraw within herself. The problem is there, and it must be met realistically.

One soldier was quoted as saying, "... I risk injury and possibly death to aid those who desire freedom. The least those at home can do is support us." —Kay Wiedenhaft

Happy? New? Year?

Happy New Year!
Or is it?

Like most people, the staff of THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN has high hopes for a peaceful, prosperous new year. But unlike many people, they also look to present, to what is as well as to what may be. Editorialists, like other writers, must make the public aware of dangers and problems and successes, too. We must make the readers think, although they may not want to spoil their rosy picture of 1966 by doing so.

Printed and signed on this page are some of the initial efforts of Mrs. T. H. Eckert's beginning news-writing class in the editorial phase of journalism. Others will be printed next week. The articles are written not to spoil the year but to show us how to perfect as nearly as possible the next 12 months,

No, Not Here

The grand crusade of "Get out of Viet Nam" and "Yankee, go home" are now being shouted not only by those in Hanoi and Red China but also by many in America.

Among these citizens are college students at Berkeley in California on the West Coast and Haverford in Pennsylvania in the East. When will the streams of hate and "Yankee-go-homeism" infiltrate into the Midwest?

The advent of these infiltrations seem inevitable. Will Northwest Missouri State ever be affected? Let us hope not. However, one can not lean on the saying, "It can't happen here" or hope to live isolated as if in Shangri-La. Ideas of anti-war, anti-peace, and anti-anything could and perhaps will penetrate into this college community.

Therefore, as the new year dawns and the old tradition of making New Year's resolutions again confronts us, let us reconsider such commonplace words as loyalty, patriotism, and love of fellow man. Let us make these ordinary words our New Year's objectives.

And, if the occasion arises when we are asked to cast away these resolutions, we will be able to say, "No, we won't let it happen here!"

—Sharon Mollenberndt

After Sit Down?

Are you opposed to the war in Viet Nam? If so, meet in dark cellars with your fellows and discuss it in whispers. Take precautions as if you were a Jew in Nazi Germany. Perhaps then you will be safe.

We call our country "free." Yet students who staged a sit-in protesting the war at the office of the Ann Arbor, Mich. draft board were re-classified 1-A.

The students were convicted only of trespassing by a court of law. But Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, found them guilty of violating a higher law, that of administration policy.

Even if the sit-in could be construed as a violation of the Selective Service Act, the act provides only for fines and imprisonment, not re-classification. General Hershey said recently that he has always thought that such a person "should be given an opportunity to enter the Armed Forces rather than be prosecuted for his violation of the law."

Perhaps the students would rather decide for themselves. And perhaps they feel that they have a legal right to express peacefully their views on Viet Nam. The next thing some one disagrees with the War of Poverty, will he be given the opportunity to expiate his sin by teaching in Appalachia?

THE STROLLER

... Eighth grade pupils, under the direction of Miss Ruth Miller, music instructor, brought happy notes to several adult groups during the pre-Christmas season as they staged informal rehearsals.

The participants, who derived as much joy from their programs as did their audiences, even brought their teachers in to some of the numbers.

... At midnight on Dec. 15, a group of students woke up their slumbering counselor. When the sleepy-eyed coun-

Delta Zeta Pledge

Three new pledges were officially initiated into the Delta Zeta sorority before vacation.

The coeds pledged are Mary Jane Knepper, Platte City; Marlene Morris, Emerson, Ia.; and Sheryl Means, St. Joseph. Miss Morris and Miss Means are elementary education majors. Miss Knepper has not chosen her major.

Phi Mu Accepts Pledges

Phi Mu Sorority accepted four pledges during open rush this semester. They are Carol Copeland, Wauke, Iowa; Judy Busch, Julie Hyde, and Jo Ellen Shebondy, all of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Two Phi Mu pledges will activate on Jan. 8. They are Mary Helen Newsome, Indianola, Iowa, and Karen Bush, Bedford.

Pinnings Are Announced

Recent Greek activities include the following pinnings: Sharon Lucas, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Kansas City, to John Banning, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Knoxville, Ia.

Kay Bray, Weatherby, to Randy Phillips, Phi Sigma Epsilon, Kansas City.

selor opened the door, Santa Claus presented him a gift in the name of the students. It would seem that Santa is in some financial difficulty, since, instead of a red suit he was wearing a faded red blanket.

... "Wild, Wild West" is a television show that has a large number of student watchers, when it comes on every Friday night.

One week when there was no sound, students gathered around the set and made up their own words. The results were probably better than the real ones.

... One instructor has learned that at least one of his students follows suggestions. He recently told this student that if he would dye his beard, the results would make the youth look exactly like Santa Claus.

Not a person to disappoint an instructor, our student colored his beard white, and he did resemble Santa. HO! HO! HO!

Phi Sigma Elects Board

The Phi Sigma Epsilon recently chose chapter officers for the coming year.

They will begin their terms of office with the spring semester after completion of their training period with the present officers.

Fred Lazear is the new president; Roger Slagle, vice-president; Larry Peart, secretary; Lou Bender, treasurer; Tom Frank, social chairman; Joe Justin, corresponding secretary; Dennis Sapp, house manager; Bob Jacobson, pledgemaster.

Tri Sigs Entertain Greeks

Sigma Sigma Sigma celebrated Christmas twice this year when they entertained all the sororities and held their own private party.

Poems, Christmas carols, and plays highlighted both gatherings. At the sorority's own party, Christmas carols were sung en route to the home of Miss Neva Ross, club sponsor, where the party was held. Stops were made to sing Yuletide songs at the homes of President Foster, Keith Bright, and the house of the sorority's counterpart, the Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity.

ies and youth of various ages stay in their own dormitories, but visit their parents every day. For years youth of the same age group live in the same hall, go to school together, and eat together on a coeducational plan.

They look upon their hall-mates almost the same as brothers and sisters. Everyone calls each other by first names. Youth even address their parents and teachers in this way but show no noticeable lack of respect for their elders.

"I was impressed by the school system," Miss Hunsicker said. "The instructors are truly guides as they help their students learn."

Probably the biggest fright the visitor had came when she and her fellow visitor had to walk "No Man's Land," a block wide space through Jerusalem, alone. Israeli guards stood with guns on one side, and the Arabs, equally well-armed, guarded the other side.

"It really gave us an alarmed feeling," she said, adding that they had sensed a similar qualm when at night they could hear the guns booming some half mile from one of the areas where they lived near the borderland.

Since her return before Christmas, Miss Hunsicker has given many talks about her life as an IFYE and will continue to share her stories of greatly enjoyed experiences with others, especially 4-H Clubs.

Miss Hunsicker's parents, Evert and Doris, have also set records in learning. Her father, who did not start his college education until his daughter

Bearcats Eye Victory No. 36 In Swimming Against Mules

Leaving behind the disappointment of having to miss the Great Plains AAU Tournament, the MSC wrestling squad is preparing for coming meets.

The Bearcat matmen will be trying to add No. 36 to their consecutive win column this weekend as they take to the mat twice in front of the home fans.

Tomorrow night the varsity team will compete against Warrensburg, said by Coach Jerry Landwer to be "probably one of the toughest teams we'll come up against," followed by Fort Hayes, then the University of Nebraska.

This will be the second meeting this year of these two powerful teams. In their first competition the Bearcat squad took first honors in the 10-team Graceland Tournament. Warrensburg placed second. While Maryville did have five champions at the tournament, many of the matches against War-rensburg were extremely close. Tonight the freshman-sophomore team will be host to the Creston Junior College squad. The matches are to begin at 7:30 p. m. in Lamkin Gymnasium.

Discussing the season as a whole, Coach Landwer commented, "Our hopes are high that we will again have a winning season, but competition is stiff, so we'll have to fight to win."

prop's servant, and Dave Weichenger, an errand boy.

Kerry Lafferty, technical director and scene designer for the play, has designed six separate settings. The play, produced in 18th century presentational style, includes a stage projected into the audience. A rear projector is being used to project part of the scenery by the use of small slides.

The scenery, built by the stage craft class, was designed for ease of travel. There will be a special performance of "The Rivals" Jan. 15 at Northeast Missouri State Teacher's College, Kirksville.

The production and technical staffs for the play include Mary McKim Ray, assistant to the production director; Tom O'Conner and Tom Laville, electricians; Eddielea Roe, wardrobe; David Shestak, make-up; Dan McLaughlin, properties; Margaret Price, sound; Doris Wilson, stage manager; Lois Garreau, business manager.

The stage crew includes Suzanne Saale, Joe Maltberger, Marica Hensleigh, Ruth Martin, Vickie Greene, Phil Reser, Scott Hodgins, and Anne Martin. Ushers are Donna McClain, Sarah Goodwin, Linda Frank, and Carol A. Dunkle.

Dr. Frank Grube Serves as Link Between Missouri Schools, NCTE

Dr. Frank Grube, chairman of the Division of Language and Literature, is performing a dual service to Missouri schools.

Beginning his third year as state chairman of the National Council for Teachers of English, Dr. Grube oversees the task of recognizing achievement in English of high school juniors.

The three steps involved in obtaining this recognition include writing three compositions. Previously, for approximately seven years, Dr. Grube assisted in judging the papers. Presently, James Saucerman, MSC English instructor, aids in the work.

Dr. Grube distributes the students' compositions to the judges. They, in turn, must report their evaluations to him.

On the state level in the Missouri Association for Teachers of English, Dr. Grube performs his second service. After holding the presidency and vice presidency and serving on the executive board, the MSC instructor now acts as liaison officer between the state and national organizations.

The principal aim of MATE which is affiliated with NCTE as expressed by Dr. Grube, is to raise the teaching qualifications of English instructors in Missouri. The organization wants standards increased to require all English instructors to take courses in the English language, as well as courses in the foreign languages.

MATE is also interested in drawing elementary teachers into its folds because these teachers also use the language arts in their work. Dr. Grube stated.

Friendship Drive Aids Fire Victims

Vacation time was both sad and a faith-renewal time for Gary Foland, '66, his wife and baby daughter, who lost all of their clothing and apartment furnishings in a College Heights fire caused by an electric water heater explosion.

Under the direction of Tom Otte and C. T. Baldwin of the Maryville B and W Sporting Goods, where the MSC senior works part-time, a friendship sharing drive was held for the Foland.

Foland, who will graduate this semester, has accepted a teaching position at Westport beginning this month.
